

Inclusivity

A representative and diverse mix of the people affected are involved, not just a narrow group.

VALUES

Transparency

People can clearly see the rules, timeline, and decisions, and can check how the process is run.

VALUES

Citizen Control

Participants have real power to shape the agenda, the process, and the outcomes, not just a chance to speak.

VALUES

VALUES

Legitimacy

The participatory and democratic process and its results are seen as fair, lawful, and acceptable by those affected.

VALUES

Dialogue

Respectful, well-reasoned discussion that uses evidence and lets all sides be heard before decisions are made.

VALUES

VALUES

Environmental Sustainability

Meeting today's needs without undermining future generations' ability to meet theirs; decisions respect ecological limits.

VALUES

VALUES

Solidarity

Mutual support and shared responsibility among people or groups working toward common goals.

VALUES

Impactfulness

The extent to which the process produces results that matter and changes policy, practice, or public opinion.

VALUES

Trust

Confidence that institutions and people will act consistently with expectations of honest, competent, and in the public interest.
